I am writing regarding the field at the top of Leconfield Rd. I read an article in The Conversation, an on line scientific publication which described the rewilding of an area of land adjacent to an ancient woodland. The area of land (Monkswood wilderness) was just left alone, and after 60 years the empty field had become woodland. If that was allowed to happen to the field at the top of Leconfield rd, the area of woodland would be increased, it could have a footpath through it to allow the local residents recreational access, and it would contribute to countering the effects of global warming. I will try to attach a link to the original article. This would help the Council ecological aims, whilst at the same time satisfying the local residents who are short of green spaces in which to exercise . Unfortunately I cannot manage to attach the original article.		No
